Is there such a thing as an “authentic Argentine cuisine”, or is it more so just an Argentinian way of cooking? These are frequently asked questions which reveal a curious inferiority complex about Argentinian cooking. After all, there is no doubt that every country has it’s own unique culture, which is usually somewhat integrated into it’s cuisine. We are not talking about food as an art form--an art form insinuates that there are certain rules, which this type of cooking certainly does not follow--we are talking about food as nothing more than the human activity that allows us to survive.
