Cartas a mis amigos (Spanish Edition) Silo

Estas Cartas a mis amigos que hoy se presentan como libro, fueron publicadas separadamente a medida que el autor las fue produciendo. Desde la primera escrita el 21/02/91 hasta la décima y última, redactada el 15/12/93, pasaron casi tres años. En ese tiempo ocurrieron transformaciones globales importantes en casi todos los campos del quehacer humano. Si la velocidad de cambio se sigue incrementando, como ha sucedido en ese lapso, un lector de las próximas décadas difícilmente entenderá el contexto mundial al que continuamente hace referencia el autor y, por consiguiente, no apresará muchas de las ideas que se expresan en estos escritos. Por ello, habría que recomendar a los hipotéticos lectores del futuro tener a mano una reseña de los acontecimientos que ocurrieron entre 1991 y 1994; sugerirles obtener una comprensión amplia del desarrollo económico y tecnológico de la época, de las hambrunas y los conflictos, de la publicidad y la moda. Sería necesario pedirles que escucharan la música; vieran las imágenes arquitectónicas y urbanísticas; observaran los hacinamientos de las macrociudades, las migraciones, la descomposición ecológica, y el modo de vida de aquel curioso momento histórico. Sobre todo habría que rogarles que intentaran penetrar en los dimes y diretes de aquellos formadores de opinión: de los filósofos, sociólogos y sicólogos de esa etapa cruel y estúpida. Si bien en estas Cartas se habla de cierto presente, es indudable que fueron redactadas con la mirada puesta en el futuro y creo que únicamente desde allí podrán ser confirmadas o refutadas.

En las diez cartas se tocan temas tales como : la aceleración del mundo de hoy; la dirección de los acontecimientos; cómo asumir las transformaciones económicas y tecnológicas; qué posturas y soluciones se observan frente a los cambios de valores, significados y comportamientos.

El libro fue presentado en el Centro Cultural Estación Mapocho, de la ciudad de Santiago de Chile, el 14 de mayo de 1994.
